Web Sub: Please provide an update for the question submitted on 9/28/17 regarding the tuition remission policy. I would like to know if any consideration has been given to changing the tuition remission policy to be based on credit hours rather than the number of classes taken.

Response: This was submitted to HR and we’re waiting for a response.

Web Sub - Suggestion: In keeping with the goal of a Thriving and Inclusive University Community, I would like to suggest the establishment of Staff Learning Communities. Similar to its Faculty Learning Community brethren, there would be goals which need to be met, a year-end document to report on the overall success (or otherwise) of the community, and stipends for conveners and active members. A thriving and inclusive community should provide ample opportunities for all members of the community to participate in contributing to "a robust intellectual community"

UPDATED Response (1/9/18): As a part of the strategic plan Human Resources will be creating more professional development opportunities for staff. It is my understanding that the faculty learning communities are also open to staff.
